Offer: The worlds of testing, high school, college, graduate and professional admissions have changed considerably over past 25 years. Testing has secured a place at the center of education and, unfortunately, students who perform poorly on these tests face serious educational repercussions. The pressure for students to succeed is palpable. Since 1981, The Princeton Review has been helping students across the country succeed in raising their scores on tests. Our programs rely on proven test-taking methods and breakthrough technology to accomplish extraordinary results.

We deliver services through a variety of programs: classroom courses; private and small group tutoring; online courses and tutoring; software; books; and podcasts. We provide preparation for the NYC Specialized High School Admissions Test as well as the PSAT, SAT, ACT, AP exams, and SAT Subject Tests on the high school level. At the graduate level we prepare students for the GMAT, GRE, LSAT, MCAT, and USMLE. We publish a series of admissions and test preparation guides including the best-selling Cracking the SAT, Best 366 Colleges and Paying for College without Going Broke.

Whether a student is facing her first PSAT or sending out law school application, she will benefit from The Princeton Review's 27 years of experience in admissions and testing.

SPECIAL OFFER: QCC members and their employees receive a 10% discount on new enrollments for classroom courses and small group tutorials in Queens. Visit www.PrincetonReview.com to view Queens course schedules. To ask questions or to enroll call 800-2Review (800-273-8439) or 718-459-7192.
